SPECIAL ADVERTISEMENTS.

THE SYDNEY MAIL
THE LARGEST ILLUSTRATED WEEKLY NEWSPAPER
PUBLISHED IN AUSTRALASIA.
THE ISSUE FOR DECEMBER 29
contains, amongst other illustrations, the following—
HOLIDAY SKETCHES OF BLUE MOUNTAIN SCENERY.
The full effects of the Sydney summer season are now beginning to be felt by the jaded and enervated dwellers of the metropolis. Those who can afford the time and bear the expense, seeking rest and change in higher climes. The Blue Mountains diversely, are great favourites with all holiday-makers. Their prettiest spots, the most romantic retreats, the places where the richest glimpses of Blue Mountain beauty are obtainable. This issue in the week number of the SYDNEY MAIL, Mr. Gortch's Leap, Prince Rupert's Glen, the charming Weep Rock, the Valley of the Grove, the Merald's Cave Valley, Adella Falls, and other favourite resorts having received attention from a special artist, will be illustrated with great fidelity, and form two pages of admirable illustrations.
THE HOME OF THE SPECTRE—A NEW YEAR'S STORY.
A ghost story which, in point of incident and extraordinary interest, is much above ordinary productions of the kind, is told in this week's issue of the MAIL. Connected with it is a charming illustration of Gravenhurst, an antiquated English home surrounded by wild-like woods and rustic wattle. This home is said to have at one time been haunted by a lady whose spectral object in coming in spirit to earth was that she might receive a Christian burial. This is done by the occupants of the house, and the lady having returned her sincere thanks a most likely way, makes her final exit. Gravenhurst may be reckoned as one of the best illustrations of the year.
WARSHIPS—ANCIENT AND MODERN.
A strong contrast is afforded by the representation of the London, a big iron war, which was the first ship that entered V.M.P., and the latest addition to the English fleet, the steam battle-ship Hero. Large illustrations of these vessels appear in this week's MAIL.
IMPROVEMENTS ON THE HANDWICK RACECOURSE.
The improvements recently made in the adding paddock entrance to the Handwick course are shown in a sketch plan this week's number. Many inconveniences which have been subject of numerous complaints, and which have hampered the management of Handwick will be obliterated by these changes which are creditable in every way to the A. J. Club.

YESTERDAY the fifth annual meeting of the Commercial Travellers' Association of New South Wales, held at the club rooms, Sydney. The report of the society to be in a flourishing condition. The annual dinner took place last night.

Amid all the mournful references that made regarding hard times and commercial depression, we are still told some things which should give us comfort—even like hope at the bottom of "Pandora's" box. The croak expected that the Christmas trade would be poor one, that railway travel would be limited, and that there would be seen on the slides signs of bad seasons and retrenchment. But what do we find? A paragraph in Monday's Herald conveys the information that the holiday traffic on our railways is greater than in previous years, and in our reports it will be observed that merchants and shopkeepers say this is an exceptionally good season for them. It is hard to harmonise these things with the gloomy forebodings of many of the statements made that the colony is suffering greatly this year. We have had a severe drought; more severe than in twenty years. Very large numbers of sheep have been lost in the West, and there has been general hardship through want of water. Still, the effects of the drought will really be felt more in 1890. The winter of this year has been good all round. It is true that on many stations it was impossible to muster all the sheep for shearing; but taking the colony altogether, we can be definitely that the season is a good one so far as wool is concerned. The main cause for apprehension has been the loss of sheep and lambs through lack of water, critical circumstances which would be felt more severely in the East and North the crops of the farmers have been exceedingly good, better than for years past. From this we can understand how it is that the trade on our railway is so extensive. The information which we published in reference to the railways says, "There was a very great influx of visitors to the metropolis from the North, South, South Coast, and Western lines." It would thus appear that the stimulus to the Christmas trade is given, not to the suburbs of Sydney, or the East, or some special and fortunate section, but by the people generally throughout the colony. With this fact before us, what are we to think? If there was a real depression, why struck at the roots of success and progress people would not be travelling to and from and making large purchases in the metropolis. We should expect economy, stagnation in trade, and little travel.

LORD MACAULAY said, "I have been hearing all my life of nothing but decay, and I have been seeing all my life nothing but progress. If Lord MACAULAY lived now, and in Australia he would not have need to all his statement. We have brooding pessimism about us, political and commercial, who, seeing one crow in the ether, declare that the sky is dark with pinions. They are of the class of weary mortals who stand at the street-corners and cry "Ichabod!" They feel the pinch of poverty in a slight economical pressure; they see in one failure a commercial avalanche; they discover in the refusal of a bank to give an overdraft to a hopelessly involved squatter a token of early financial dissolution, and the bankruptcy of the State; they regard the collapse of a bogus syndicate and the failure of a mining company that only existed on paper as a sure prescientiment of commercial mortification. Yet, with these shivering terrorists in our midst, with all the bilious prognostications that have assailed us, and as all us still, what is the record of the year? There have been many very few failures; none of any consequence. There has been a certain relaxation in enterprise, there has been stagnation in building, and there has been little construction of public works; but our commerce does not seem to be shaken so severely as we have been made to believe. The fact of the matter is, there has been during the last two years increased caution on all sides. Merchants have been more careful in purchasing goods. They have bought when they expected but a moderate trade, if they are not carrying over as much dead stock as formerly. Small shopkeepers over the country have followed in the fashion, and with moderation in purchase a fairly good trade through the year the commercial condition at this Christmas time is not such that would warrant us in being specially apprehensive. If we leave out the fever of mining speculation which attacked us nine months ago, we shall find that our commercial record for the year is but legitimate, and a good average. But we did not go into mining speculation with the heedlessness which characterised our Victorian neighbours, and we have escaped the evil influences of the land boom which has unsettled the course of their prosperity.

No more convincing evidence of our position exists than is found in the increase in the revenue returns. They are a trustworthy index of the national condition. Steadily for a year and a quarter has the revenue increased, and the increase has been even and constant. In some departments of trade there has been doubtless decrease of activity, and that owing chiefly to the fact that there is less building going on than there was three or four years ago. These trades, therefore, that are more or less dependent upon the construction of buildings must feel the pressure, but not such a degree as to cause great distress. The reports published some time ago regarding the unemployed showed that those who sought work were chiefly workmen who were affected by the slackness in building, and a large proportion of them came from Victoria.

THE MISSION SCHOONER DASHING.
Yesterday the smart three-masted schooner Bayview, from Baltimore, returned to port after her mission last week. The schooner was out for 10 days, but she has no new returns, not because there is no further need of valuable services among the many groups in the South Atlantic, but because she has been so busy. She now lies up here until next April, when she will sail for the West Indies. She was out of New York for 11 days in from Annapolis. The schooner left Baltimore in September, arrived at Aradbury October 16, and sailed for the West Indies October 20. She visited Barbados, St. Vincent, Tona, Antigua, Aradbury, Maldivas, Malé, and Santo. The good work in which the Bayview is engaged was so successful that the schooner was ordered to return to place as required, and the wants of the missionaries in mission supplied as far as practicable. There remains of course much to be done, but the Bayview has done much more about the sea has accomplished a large amount of and receiving mails, she left for Port Said and had five months until arrival there at the public to a few points in reference to the port making the Clarence River accessible to shipping of all kinds and competing it by rail with Glen Innes. The following are the points to be considered:—(1) The rainfall centre to be served by the proposed works would be—Gratton, 34.0 in.; Glen Innes, 35.7 in.; 29.0 in.; and Tenterden, 37.3 in. These are all the stations on the railway line between 20 and 30 miles from the average for Clarence Heads, on the coast, is about 40 in. We have in this northern part of New South Wales inland average rainfall of over 40 in.; an average of 30 in. for the whole of New South Wales; and in Australia, in inter-tropical parts, where agricultural settlement by Europeans is difficult and unprofitable, it is not more than 20 in. It may be stated that on such questions that a rainfall of from 25 to 30 inches is the best possible average for agricultural settlement, and the rainfall is the most important factor in the selection of a site for such a settlement, and the place when once established. The rainfall of a country, in temperate zone, if the soil be fertile, determines its capacity to support an agricultural population, and the of the country, and the nature of the settlement? Apart from mining—and in that is not deficient—there is very little else. The only drawback is inaccessibility. Given the cheap access to the north coast and Northern Districts from New South Wales, it is surprising that there is not more than an equal east of Australia. I think that this country has not already a large population, and that in the Northern districts the thing that has not occurred naturally is cattle raising. This is a natural consequence of the heavy and regular rainfall. In the west it was possible by running sheep and cattle on the natural grass, but in the north it is necessary to grow wheat and to export it. The production of much labour on the natural grass and capital, and the employment given to our people may be made one hundred times as great as the population will be in the same proportion. The population of the Northern districts is about 100,000, and the population of the whole of Australia is about 1,000,000.
